

New York Child Care Licensing Laws:

Healthy Food, Physical Activity and Screen Time Summary

Child care providers are important partners in helping children learn how to eat healthy and be physically active. New York requires licensure of certain child care providers, and the licensing requirements include regulations about providing nutritious food and active play. The Public Health Law Center has reviewed the child care licensing statutes and regulations to identify the how the setting is defined, how it is regulated, and who is exempt from regulation. The review also identifies the public health requirements for child care providers (nutrition, active play, screen-time limitations, etc.). We have created several resources, including highlighted statutes and regulations and a detailed chart with key child care licensing components, found here: <http://www.publichealthlawcenter.org/resources/healthy-child-care/ny>. This resources provides a summary of New York statutes and regulations impacting healthy food, physical activity and screen time.

Because child care licensing laws are constantly being reviewed, some statutes and regulations may have been updated since the Center collected them. Therefore, users should confirm whether there have been any revisions to state law since this information was gathered.
